The Herald has entered its fortysixth year. The pioneer in Laurens journalism fully maintains its character as one of the best county papers in South Carolina. The ADVERTISER finds the Herald agreeable company and hopes to jog along with its respected neighbor to a time when there is a better chance for both to grow fat than the present.

It is the rule of the ADVERTISER to print any correspondence sent us accompanied with the name of the writer and likely to be of interest, if couched in language that does not violate common proprieties and space permits. But in no case are we responsible for the expressions of correspondents and the fact of their publication does not commit us as in sympathy with them, Our reguler correspondents are of great assistance to us in gathering and giving the news.

In Charleston thirteen hundred polls are taxed, while the number liable is estimated at eight thousand. Newspapers and State Superintendent Mayfield are concerning themselves about the matter. Gentlemen should remember that all polls over fifty are exempt and inhabitants of the old "city by the sea" are veterans in many things. Some tenderness is due to gentlemen as well as ladies in a delicate matter like the present.

The bad state of things is be-in felt most heavily by the poorest of people, men who do not own inpelled to give liens and who depend entirely for the support of themselves and their families on the crops they make. The large farmers and landlords will suffer too, but their misfortunes will be lighter than those of any other class. Very few of them will clear any money, and many of them will lose, but in the main they will be able to pay their bank notes and other floating indebtedness. Atter the laborers, white and black, merchants and business men are most seriously embarassed. To the dealers in bacon, corn, shoes, cloth, spades, hoes, mules and every other necessary, thousands of dollars are owing which will never be paid; simply because it has not been and could not be dug out of the ground. Merchants, stock dealers, physicians, lawyers, newspaper men, and even preachers with the farmers must suffer loss together.
